

COLE CHARGED WITH MURDER OF HIS WIFE

Husband of Lettie Cole Held on Examiner's Report on Woman's Death.

St. Johnsbury, Vt., April 30.—Convinced more firmly than ever today that the death of Mrs. Lettie Cole at Lyndenville last Friday was not suicidal as reported by the local health officer, a charge of manslaughter has been lodged against the woman's husband, William C. Cole.

Detained at Wentworth, N. H., yesterday, he was formally placed under arrest today and brought to this city, where he was placed in the Caledonia county jail pending a hearing on April 30. In the meantime Mrs. Cole's body will be examined in an autopsy performed by Drs. Stone and Whitney of the state laboratory at Burlington.

An investigation by the county authorities has revealed the fact that Cole and his wife had quarrelled frequently since their reconciliation two weeks ago, after a separation of several months. Neighbors have been questioned and many facts brought to light with regard to the home life of the Coles. They were deemed of sufficient importance to warrant Cole's arrest and an autopsy upon the body of his wife.

It was first declared that death was due to poison, self administered. Cole was employed in a pharmacy at Lyndenville.

FIGHTING THE BIG FLOOD

Flood Conditions Along the Ohio
River at Cairo are Most Desperate at Present Time

Cairo, Ill., April 1.—The Ohio river rose steadily through the night and at 7 o'clock today stood at a point between 53.2 and 53.3. The population was astir early and the fact that the water had substantially passed the 52 mark caused considerable anxiety.

All expected that the day would prove the crucial one in the fate of the city. The crest of the flood is expected to reach here today and if the levees hold, it is the belief that the worst will be passed. Much trouble was experienced during the night in the drainage district along the Big Four levee. Three times slides occurred and only valiant work on the part of those watching it saved the day. Dozens of carloads of sand bags were placed about the weak spots and serious trouble was averted.

Water seeped through under the concrete wall and stood in the main street of Cairo today, but the levee has shown no signs of weakening. A big force of men worked all night placing sand bags and other holdbacks along the city waterfront. Refugees continued to leave the city all night and crowds are still waiting at depots to get out.

The water is rising much more rapidly than yesterday and the demand for more working men has become urgent. The surface of the Ohio river now stands about one foot higher than the highest level. In case of a break the flood waters would not rise to more than one or two feet in the buildings on the street, but all of the rest of the town becomes gradually lower and most of the houses would be completely submerged. A large subway which was the only passage way from Cairo into the drainage district has been blocked to save the city. The place has been boarded up and dozens of carloads of sandbags placed to hold it secure.

As workmen are able to battle no longer with the levee situation in the drainage district, they are brought into Cairo and set to work along the river front.

Most of the houses and places of business in the drainage territory have been abandoned and it is the prediction that that section is doomed, although this break cannot result in Cairo proper being flooded.

The state troops were sent out in squads of five today, each accompanied by a policeman to visit the rendezvous of men who are either unwilling or have refused to work.

All places of business which do not handle goods needed for the comfort and necessities of the people have been closed, so that the employees may reinforce the workers along the river.

The Rev. M. H. Love of the Methodist church, who has had charge of relief work in former years, is again at the head of the relief committee. He will have about twenty assistants and a temporary hospital, which has been arranged on a large wharfboat in the river.

Cairo is situated on low lands at the fork of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers.

DATE SET FOR TRIAL OF MAINE SHERIFF

Joint Committee Reaches an Agreement on Impeachment Hearing.

Augusta, Me., April 1.—Differences between the house and senate over the question of an investigation of the conduct of certain sheriffs in relation to the enforcement of the prohibition law were adjusted tonight when the conference committee of the two houses came to an agreement. The committee, consisting of Senators Hersey and Wing of Franklin county and Representatives Newbert of Augusta, Bates of Westbrook, and Smith of Patten, voted to try the impeachment case of John W. Hallow of Bath, sheriff of Sagadahoc county, next Friday.

After the Ballou case is disposed of, Lewis W. Moulton of West Baldwin, sheriff of Cumberland county, Wilbert W. Emerson of Hampden, sheriff of man of Rockland, sheriff of Knox county, Howitt M. Lowe of Turner, sheriff of Androscoggin county, and Penobscot county, Adelbert J. Tietman of Rockland, sheriff of Knox county, Howitt M. Lowe of Turner, sheriff of Androscoggin county and William H. Hines of Lewiston, county attorney of Androscoggin.

After the senate's original resolve for an investigation of the acts of Sheriff Moulton of Cumberland county a demerit had been amended by the house to include an investigation of two republican officials, Sheriffs Emerson and Ballou, the senate refused to concur, and added the names of Messrs Hines Lowe and Tietman to the list. Since then the matter has been hanging fire between the two houses.

The cases will be tried separately, but house and senate leaders do not expect the trials to last more than a few days. Some of them expressed the opinion tonight that the cases will have been completed by the end of next week.

DRAWING NET ON SMUGGLERS

Boston the Centre of Investigation
By the Special Agents of the Treasury Department

Boston, April 2.—Investigation into the custom fraud cases by which the government has been defrauded of hundreds of thousands of dollars in Boston and New York was entered in this city yesterday and more arrests are expected within the next 12 hours.

Throughout the entire day, chief John E. Wicks of the Treasury department, working under the personal direction of Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, was at the federal business engaged in examining persons believed to have knowledge of the gigantic swindling scheme.

Four witnesses were called before him and it is understood that many startling revelations were disclosed during their interrogation. It was rumored that certain officials high in the service of the customs department, had been implicated, although no one present at the examination would discuss the case.

Special Agents Active

The questioning of those summoned to the federal building lasted until early in the evening and when the last witnesses had been dismissed special agents of the treasury department were dispatched on various missions. They would not tell where they were going, but according to one who is in the confidence of the investigators, many names have been revealed during the day's activities, necessitating an investigation into the business of several Boston men. The persons examined by Chief

WHITE WOMAN ENDED HER OWN LIFE

St. Louis Woman Had Married a Negro and Became Dependent Over Her Act.

St. Louis, Mo., April 1.—Mrs. Julia MacFarlane Gerhart, brother of Frank H. Gerhart, Progressive candidate for mayor of St. Louis died this afternoon as the result of taking poison with suicidal intent at the home of Mrs. Adeline Cox. Later Mrs. Cox announced that after her divorce Mrs. Gerhart had married a negro.

Mrs. Gerhart, as she was known here, took the poison that resulted in her death two days ago, and since then has been unconscious. The attempt at suicide was made, it is said after a long spell of brooding because her negro husband had followed her from St. Paul to St. Louis and insisted upon seeing her.

Mrs. Gerhart was divorced last November and 35 days later, according to Mrs. Cox she married a negro, J. W. Kellogg, at St. Paul. Kellogg formerly was butler in the Gerhart home. Mrs. Gerhart was an ardent horsewoman and huntress.

In her divorce petition she said that Gerhart was worth $300,000 but since their separation the preceding April he had given her but $30 for her support. She was granted alimony of $1200 a year.

Mrs. Cox said that soon after Mrs. Gerhart went to her boarding house to live, the negro Kellogg began to call on her. Mrs. Cox objected to these visits but Mrs. Gerhart answered that the negro was her butler.

MIDNIGHT FIRE DESTROYS SALEM PICTURE HOUSE

Loss Estimated at $125,000;
Help Summoned From Other Cities.

Salem, April 2.—A loss of $125,000 was sustained on Theatre Row, Essex street, by fire at midnight, that threatened the whole district. Game's Witch theatre, owned by the Stanton Bros., and J. L. Lougee Co. furniture dealers, were the heaviest losers. Help was summoned from Marblehead, Peabody, Beverly and Lynn.

After the flames seemed about under control, they broke out with renewed fury completely destroying the Packard building, owned by the Lougee Co. They carried a heavy stock of house furnishings the loss of which is estimated at between $50,000 and $75,000. The building was valued at $20,000.

The fire started in the office of the Witch theatre from some unknown cause. The place had been closed for two hours.

Several persons in the Empire theatre nearly left on hearing the apparatus outside but no disorder resulted. The loss of the Stanton Bros. is placed at $25,000.

W. N. Buck, millinery; Edward Benesult, barber; Boston Coffee House, C. S. Bingham, proprietor, and G. W. Fuller, crockery, sustained smaller losses.

A high wind threatened the surrounding property consisting mostly of wooden blocks for a wide area.

Help quickly called from the surrounding towns fortunately kept the flames from spreading further.

When the flames broke out for the second time in the Packard block, the firemen feared for the safety of the Crombie street church, but the brick walls and the slate roof saved the structure.

One fireman was slightly injured.

DRYDEN DEFEATED BY DR. ROLLER IN GOOD MATCH

Dr. Benjamin F. Roller, undoubtedly the best known wrestler in America, who stands with a few at the top of his profession—for he has made wrestling a profession—defeated Bill Dryden in a handicap match at Freeman's hall on Tuesday evening, throwing Dryden twice in an hour and they gave a very fine exhibition. At no stage of the game was there any doubt about the superiority of Dr. Roller and this is no discredit to Dryden who made a very fine showing. Dr. Roller, however, weighs 215 pounds whereas Bill Dryden does not weigh over 175, a very heavy handicap, considering the fact that the man with that weight is one of the top notch wrestlers of the world.

George Touhey of Boston, the well known sporting writer and one of the biggest wrestling promoters of the country, and a man whom it has been said, knows more about wrestling than any man in the country, refereed the match and of course did it in fine shape. Mr. Touhey, who has refereed world's championship matches, used the same method of calling off the distance of shoulders from the floor such as a full hand, half a hand etc. and to the fans here not used to this method it seemed an advantage to Dr. Roller, which of course was not the point at all. At the request of Dr. Roller the boys who were outside hanging around, were admitted free and when the match was closed in the last few minutes these same boys who should never be allowed at any match unaccompanied by parents, started trouble by hooting.

Dr. Roller is a wonderfully built man with none of the lumpy muscles of some of the professional wrestlers, and he has a fine knowledge of the game, and at all times is a clean wrestler. He wrestled in bare feet and knew clear of the feet, allowing no liberties with his hands. At one time he had a toe hold on Dryden, which if he was so inclined, would have been dangerous, but he satisfied himself with giving Bill a taste of the medicine he has handed out to many wrestlers this winter.

Dryden did some very fine work, getting out of some hard places and at all times being willing to mix it up. He was powerless when Roller was on the defense, being unable to get any hold but Roller did not break at will. On the defense himself however, he was very good and wiggled repeatedly out of some very tight places. The first fall came after 36 minutes 34 seconds and it was with a crotch and further arm hold and a front Nelson. This left 23 minutes and 26 seconds for the last fall and Roller took almost all of it. The last ten minutes was very fast and with Dryden working at his best and he repeatedly stalled Roller off. The fall was finally made in 22 minutes 20 seconds with a crotch and arm bar, Roller having his full weight on Dryden's shoulders, so that he was unable to move. It was a hold that he had no chance of breaking and there was no doubt of this result.

Dryden showed up wonderfully well and he probably gained more experience from his match last evening than all the winter, and it is no discredit to be thrown by a man who has defeated the best of the men in the world.

George Touhey, who is favorably remembered here by the older fans from his boxing matches he ran here, eighteen years ago, received a warm welcome from his friends.

Previous to the match he made a brief talk which was very interesting, and among other things said that there was no reason why ladies should not attend wrestling matches. There is always a good number of ladies at the big shows in Boston and other places.

At the conclusion of the match Mr. Touhey announced a double bill for next Tuesday night, when Cydonia Burns will wrestle Ladyfinger a Canadian heavy weight, who wrestles at 215 pounds and Dryden will meet Mr. Donald a 185 pound man from Worcester, who is a very fast man. It is the best bill ever offered in this city and should draw a big crowd.

Look Out Batters, Walter Johnson Is Out After Pitching Records

Washington, April 2—Walter Johnson, the Senators' great pitcher says here is no reason why he should not experience the best season of his career this year. "This spring I feel better than ever and with a strong team behind me I believe I will establish some new pitching records. I think the Senators will improve over last year's team and make a strong bid for the pennant. According to many critics, Johnson is the best pitcher in the game. He has not pitched more than any other twister, and change of pace, and best of all a control. Doc White of the Chicago White Sox recently paid Johnson this compliment: "He is a marvel. His delivery is as rhythmic as the motion of the sea. He just stands there as always away, and he doesn't care much who is the batter either. He has hit on most of them all of the time, and all of them same of it."

TURKEY ACCEPTS POWERS TERMS

Constantinople, April 1.—The Turkish Government today declared that it unreservedly accepted the terms of peace proposed by the European Powers.

The Foreign Office handed the Ottoman acceptance to the dean of the diplomatic corps this morning, accompanied by an expression of thanks to the Powers for their mediation.

The terms of mediation offered by the European Powers to Turkey and to the Balkan Allies were as follows:

1.—The frontier of the Ottoman empire in Europe shall start at Enos and, following the course of the Maritza river and then that of the Ergene, shall end at Midia. All territories situated to the west of this line shall be ceded by Turkey to the Allied states, with the exception of Albania, the delimitation of which shall be fixed by the Powers.

2.—The question of the Aegean islands shall be settled by the Powers.

3.—Turkey shall abandon all claim to Crete.

4.—The Powers cannot favorably entertain the demand for indemnity, but they will admit the Allies to participate in the discussions of the international commission in Paris for an equitable settlement of their participation in the Ottoman debt and in the financial charges of the districts to be handed over to them. Turkey is to be asked to take part in the labors of this commission.

The great Powers declared at the same time that as soon as these bases are accepted hostilities shall cease.

On Friday last, March 28, Bulgaria notified her acceptance of the offer of mediation, but persisted in her demand for a war indemnity and declined to agree to the suggested frontier line from Midia on the Black Sea to the Gulf of Saros, at the top of the Peninsula of Gallipoli.

HELD FOR ARSON IN FACTORY FIRE

Amesbury, April 1.—Philip L. Lowry of Merrimack, who was arrested last week at Eagle Rock, N. J., where he had been living disguised as a negro, was arraigned in the district court here today upon charges of arson. He was held under $1000 bonds for the grand jury.

It is claimed by the police that Lowry set fire to a foundry in Merrimack on the morning of Aug. 30, 1911, and again in Aug. 5, 1912. A warrant was issued for his arrest several months ago and since that time he has been a fugitive from Massachusetts. The police state that Lowry built the factory and then set fire to them for the purpose of collecting the insurance.

CADILLAC ELECTRIC CRANKING DEVISE UNUSUALLY EFFICIENT

A recent investigation by the Cadillac company developed some very interesting information concerning the efficiency of their electric cranking device.

Out of 617 replies received, 628 owners reported that in not one single instance had they been obliged to crank their cars by hand, while only 89 owners had done so. Among the reasons assigned were a number who said they had cranked their cars hand just to see how it was done. The total miles traveled by the 617 cars was 1,198,385, and the total times cranked by hand 160, showing an average of one hand cranking to each 8,665 miles of travel, or one in about what is equal to two years average use.

Another question asked was: Has your electric system been thoroughly efficient? Every reply, without exception, was "yes."

The strike or labor difference among the painters, which resulted in all of the painters going out on Monday evening, was settled on Tuesday evening when the master painter, signed a compromise scale, and the men went to work this morning.

The painters demanded a minimum of $3.00 a day and of course an eight hour day. The master painters compromised by allowing a minimum wage of $2.50 a day, which is an increase of 25 cents a day to all the workmen.

All of the painters with the exception of one who was away, signed the wage scale.

The following statement has been given out from President Allen's office:

"President Allen is deeply affected by the news of Mr. Morgan's death. It is under a great weight of obligation for the consideration and support Mr. Morgan has given him for many years. A few weeks before he left this country he was frank in his expressions that his sole remaining ambition in life was to have the association of his friends and to live long enough to have the New Haven electrified, so that his body might be borne to its resting place in Connecticut, passing over the best and most modern electrified standard gauge railroad in the world.

"I meant every word of it," the President is said to have told his visitor.

WILSON NOT TO MAKE CHANGES IN LABOR COMMISSION

Washington, April 1.—The nominations for the Federal Commission on Industrial Relations will probably be sent to the Senate next week by President Wilson. It is expected here that the three representatives of capital and the three representatives of labor who were selected by President Taft will be chosen again by Mr. Wilson. It is expected, however, that the so-called representatives of the public on the commission will be all new names. According to the best information available President Wilson will appoint three of the following: Father John A. Ryan of St. Paul Seminary, St. Paul, Minn., the author of a book entitled The Living Wage; Mrs. Florence Kelly of the National Consumers League; Edward T. Devine, editor of the Survey, and Louis D. Brandies, the Boston lawyer. In case Dr. Devine cannot serve, it is probable that the President will select a professional economist from these four names: Professor R. W. Taussig of Harvard, Professor E. R. A. Seligman and Henry R. Seager of Columbia, and Professor George E. Barnett of Johns Hopkins. It is understood that Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago, and Mrs. Raymond Robins, also of Chicago, as well as Robert A. Woods of Boston are being considered.

It is believed here that President Wilson will make no change in the three representatives of labor originally chosen by President Taft. They are: A. H. Griston of Iowa, president of the Order of Railway Conductors; J. D. Lennox, treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, and James O'Connell, vice president of the same. The members of the commission who represent the interest of the employers also will not be changed. The list is as follows: P. A. Delano, president of the Walsh, Adolph Lewisohn, banker of New York, and F. C. Selwedman, electrical engineer of Missouri.

As will be recalled, the Senate at the instance of the Committee on Industrial Relations of which Samuel McCune Lindsey of Columbia University was chairman, refused to confirm President Taft's nomination for this commission. The principal fight centered on the appointment of Senator Sutherland of Utah, G. H. Chandler of Connecticut and Charles Simon Barrett of Georgia, president of the Farmers Union, as representatives of the public. The advocates of the commission ultimately maintained that these three names did not truly represent the public and the new point of view which it was believed to be adopted toward industrial problems.

A NEW WAY FOR SUICIDE

London, April 1.—Lieut. Perlovski of the Russian army committed suicide at Warsaw on Sunday by shutting off the motor of an aeroplane in which he was flying and dropping from a height of 600 feet to the ground, according to a Central News dispatch.

The tragedy was believed to have been an accident until a letter written just before the fatal flight was opened. In it Lieut. Perlovski expressed his intention of stopping his motor in midair, and gave as a reason for his action that he had been the victim of many intrigues.

MORGAN'S FORTUNE IS ESTIMATED AT 300 MILLION

New York, April 1.—Estimates of the fortune left by J. P. Morgan, as made in the financial district today, range from $75,000,000 to $300,000,000, this sum including his art collections. It is understood that the financiers will be of comparatively recent date, but no information has been made when it will be given to the public. Mr. Morgan's personal counsel declines to discuss the matter.

Those who shared Mr. Morgan's close friendship predict that there will be large charitable and public bequests, although it is conceded, that the son, J. P. Morgan, will doubtless receive the bulk of the fortune.

Mr. Morgan's really holdings were comparatively small, and by far the greater part of the estate, it is understood, will be made up of gift-edged securities. Judging by his former quiet philanthropy, those who speculated today as to possible bequests thought that the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Episcopal church and perhaps Yale and Harvard Universities would come in for handsome benefactions.

The funeral plans, it was thought, will be announced some time today, either in New York or in Rome.

Francis Lynde Stetson Silent

Francis Lynde Stetson, intimate friend and personal counsel for J. P. Morgan, when asked for an expression on the financiers' death said:

When a man learns of the death of a friend of 25 years standing he cannot sit down calmly and give a public estimate of the personal loss. It is too intimate.

Of all men in intimate relations with Mr. Morgan he is perhaps the only one outside of J. P. Morgan Jr., who knows what disposition Mr. Morgan has made of his estate in his will. He has been inquired, he sought seclusion in his private offices in the Mills Building yesterday, denying himself to everybody except his most intimate friends and associates.

That Mr. Morgan left a will of comparatively recent date, or at least brought up to date by codicils, and that under it his interest in the firm will remain, is all that was announced.

Those in closest touch with Mr. Morgan's affairs, however, were confident that he made some very liberal public bequests.

If you should say that the bulk of the estate goes to young Mr. Morgan said one of these, you would not be far from the exact truth. Mrs. Morgan is very liberally provided for as are his daughters and his grandchildren. You will probably find that part of the bequests to the Morgan girls are in trust as are the provisions for the grandchildren. Some of his old employees are well provided for, and it would not be surprising if some of his partners, particularly the younger men, got substantial gifts.

Probable Beneficiaries.

Harvard and Yale Universities, the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New York, Episcopal missions and the Cathedral of St. John the Divine will also in all probability be found to figure in the will. So will the Metropolitan Museum of Art. I think one is safe in assuming that the gifts to these and smaller charitable and educational institutions will amount to many millions. Most of them, I understand, are direct, others reverendary on the death of certain beneficiaries. It is almost certain that the bulk of his art treasures will go to the Metropolitan Museum.

How much the estate will be valued at is a question that Wall street and Mr. Morgan's friends are not agreed upon. None of the estimates given in the Street fall below $100,000,000, and they range up to $600,000,000 and more.

It is certain that the estate will be proved for more than $300,000,000 said one lawyer who has done much business for the Morgan firm. I say $300,000,000, for it is a certainty that a man of Mr. Morgan's caliber would not invest more than a quarter of his fortune in art objects. Well, we know his collections are worth $75,000,000. That gives $225,000,000 as a minimum.

One reason why Mr. Morgan's estate may not prove as large as might be expected is because of late years he has made over large sums to members of his family. Mrs. Morgan is very wealthy in her own right, so is the new head of the house. He was equally liberal with his daughters and grandchildren.

Estate in Gift Edge Issues.

Aside from his interest in his great his really holdings, which are comparatively small, and his art objects, those in the best position to know believe that the estate will be found for the most part to consist of gift-edged stocks and bonds of the highest class. Of the great combinations that he formed and floated on the market he retained little interest of late years. Thus it is known that his holdings of Steel common are a small percent of the total issue, and he had little more of the preferred stock. It is considered probable that it will be found that most of his holdings in Steel consist of bonds.

The same is true of his railroad holdings. In New Haven for instance he is understood to have held comparatively little stock, nor was he a large holder in the common stock of the Southern Railway, which he formed out of nearly two score railroad and terminal companies, though he did hold considerable amounts of the preferred stock of this latter company and a large amount of underlying or first mortgage bonds and guaranteed stocks of various small railroads no longer known to the general investing public.

Details of Death Sent to Morgans Son.

J. P. Morgan, Jr., received today from his brother-in-law Herbert L. Satterlee, who is at Rome, a long code telegram, containing details of his father's illness and death. An announcement, however, was made of its contents.

Members of the Morgan household expected to meet this afternoon to make funeral arrangements.

MEN'S HAIRDRESSING.

Male fashion of hairdressing have got into the papers—with the photographs of the eighteen men who got from Putney to Mortlake. Look through the pictures, and you will not find more than two men with even the suspicion of a moustache. But the parting of the hair is important. There are only three men who part their hair down the middle—in order to trim the best, one presumes. The other men part their hair on left or right. And which is right?

Personally, I took the parting of the ways on my marriage morning. Looking into the glass I determined that from this moment I should change my terrible habits and indicate the same by parting by hair on the right. I have retained the beneficent change, though the hairdresser has always to be reminded that—as a married man—my remaining head hairs are parted on the right.—London Chronicle.

Navy Yard Work.

The Post believes that when Secretary of the Navy Daniels visits the navy yards at Portsmouth and Boston he will find in those places sufficient capabilities for usefulness to keep them busy at high water mark practically all of the time. It may be taken for granted, we presume, that he and the new administration will repudiate immediately and absolutely the Meyer scheme for the abandoning of our present New England yards and the creation of a huge naval station in Narragansett bay. This being the case, the regular yards should be developed into the finest conditions of efficiency. So long as we have a navy, we must have adequate navy yards. Some of those on the Atlantic coast may be superfluous, but surely not the ones at Boston and Portsmouth. All imaginable conditions demand their complete rehabilitation.—Boston Post.

The citizens of Portsmouth greatly appreciate the good work being done by the Boston Post in defense of the two naval stations and stand ready at any time to co-operate with Boston for the advancement and welfare of the two navy yards.

Arkansas Now Without Militia.

The state of Arkansas has achieved the military distinction of being the only state in the country without a military organization. It has lost its national guard as the result of the defeat of the bill in the legislature of that state on Monday providing an appropriation of $25,000 for the militia. The measure cannot be brought up again at this session of the legislature, and it is likely that the government appropriation of $170,000 will be withdrawn. The freak-like actions of some of the legislators of the western states is once more in evidence. What would happen should Arkansas experience what Ohio and Indiana are now going through. The militia of those states have been most necessary.

Boost Portsmouth.

Not only because it's good policy, but because it's a duty, for you will travel many miles before you find a town with as many natural advantages or one that possesses such fine opportunity for growth. Therefore, think highly of her always. Speak well of her at all times. Remember, you can talk her up or down as you can a friend. Seek to know her good points and do all you can to advertise them. Find her vices and abolish them. See to it that laws are enforced. Look yourself squarely in the face and ask: "What kind of town would my town be if all its citizens were just like me?"

Diplomatic Posts.

Men of the calibre and character these important offices demand are extremely reluctant to accept them because of the sacrifice service entails. Underpaid and ill-provided for, men of moderate means cannot meet the exactions of foreign courts. To ask a man to abandon his business and to spend his entire salary and more in following the customs of a diplomatic post, is surely unreasonable. The United States should profit by its experiences to date and take steps to make its foreign service available to men of capacity, yet of small means. Wealth and leisure have been the tests of fitness for these places too long.—New Bedford Times.

Not An Exterior Matter.

When some fool reformers, in and out of legislatures, get it through their heads that morals are not determined nor virtue established by $3 or less a week in a working girl's pay envelope, or three inches taken from or added to the neck of a woman's gown, it will begin to appear as if the world really is improving.—Springfield Union.

Portsmouth's Delegation Should Work Together.

Portsmouth has two or three important matters before the legislature that should at least secure a united vote from the local representatives. The armory bill and the water bond bills are not political. Let the members work together.

Prompt Relief Given Flood Sufferers.

The government's response to the call from Ohio and Indiana for relief was prompt and without any interference from red tape. That is just as it should be and President Wilson and his assistants have rendered the country a distinct service.

J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., Expected to Fill His Dead Father's Place In the Great Money World.

Photos copyright by American Press Association.

With the death of J. Pierpont Morgan the intensest sort of speculation arose as to who would fill the great financial place in the financial world. The answer from many sources has been that J. P. Morgan, Jr., Mr. Morgan's able son, would take his father's mantle of financial kingship. Mr. Morgan, Jr., has been actively directing the big money enterprises of his father in association with the several Morgan partners for some time, and it has been often reported that the son had learned all business intricacies and was an eminently capable financier. Above, at the right, is one of the latest pictures of the dead multimillionaire, with a picture of Mrs. Morgan, the widow, at his left and below that a late picture of Mr. Morgan, Jr.

A GOOD EXAMPLE

It is too optimistic to hope that good results in all parts of the country will follow the emphatic and unqualified ban which Mrs. Wilson, the mistress of the White House, has put on the turkey leg, lingo, funny talk and other indecent dances at all the official and private social affairs at which she will preside as the first lady of the land. The effect of this cannot fail to be felt to a marked degree in Washington society, and thence it must radiate more or less in all directions. As the mother of three daughters and as a sensible, wholesome woman, Mrs. Wilson has taken a stand that cannot be commended too highly. If all mothers of good daughters and sensible women, who are and mothers were to show equal courage the dancing evil would soon cease to present the present serious problem.

Those new dances that had an indecent origin were taken up by the so-called society leaders who are always hungry for novelty at any cost. The dancing teachers found their cure. Young people in school quickly adopted the suggestion. Now, in charge of school dances and of other gatherings of young people are kept at their wits end to prevent the dancing from falling to the level of the dive. Too often they fall in their attempts, and the dances fall to that level and stay there, or have to be forbidden altogether. Innocent and pure minded young people who participate in these vulgar dances do not long remain innocent and pure minded. It is not prudence or old-fashioned to deplore the situation, and to hope that people of refinement everywhere will join Mrs. Wilson in the stand she has taken. There must be a reaction from the dancing excesses and indecencies of the past winter, and it cannot come too soon.—Boston Herald.

PEOPLE'S OPINIONS

To the Editor of the Herald: What a dry, prosaic old world this would be if "everybody" believed just like everybody else, wouldn't it?

I was not a little amused to learn that, notwithstanding the synopsis of my sermon was so "tedious," Mr. Justin Henry Shaw found it so interesting that he followed it "up in the air." I congratulated him that his near approach to the heavenly region proved less attractive than the ties of earth, and that "dear old Portsmouth" is not yet to be deprived of his genial personality. Yes, I am glad that he is safely, with no "scratched" bones.

Evidently his "heavenly" experience had a soothing effect, for he was in such amiable mood as to express pity to first cousin to sympathy for the poor preacher—or was it for the dear public?

You see, dear Editor, I put myself alongside of Brother Paul: "But this I confess unto thee, that after the way which they call heresy, so worship I the God of my fathers, believing all things which are written in the law and the prophets. And have hope toward God, which they themselves also allow, that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and the unjust."

It is true; I believed that Jesus meant what He said, when He promised to restore the dead. I did not, therefore, draw my conclusions from Roman you see again, dear Editor, that, according to Brother Justin, I am a bit behind the times, and did not know that it had been written concerning him (Roman) behold, a greater than Jesus is here!

I am sure I shall wait very patiently while Brother Justin writes a new little book on the sayings of Jesus, and Paul, and Peter, and brings their ideas "up to date," cutting out all their "mis-takes."

I merely implore in closing: What must the men and women, who are "living among the Burnetts," etc., etc., think of the intellectual acumen of one who "wastes his time" (and a postage stamp) pouring over three or four columns of "tedious" matter, and preparing his opinions and transmitting them to the press?

I suspect, dear Editor, there is a "ty" in Brother Justin's "admission!" O (P)shaw!

Respectfully yours,
MYRON M. ADAMS,
Pastor Advent Christian Church.

THE LADY AT THE GATE

To Peter watching at the gate
A lady came one day,
And said, "Make haste, nor bid me wait;
Admit me right away!"
"And pray," he said, "who may you be?"
Your countenance is strange to me;
I shall be very glad to see
Your passport if I may."

"My passport, sir?" she made reply;
"This is a foul disgrace;
I need no passport here for I
Am well known in this place;
Come, turn the key and let me through.
Without more parley or ado,
It ought to be enough for you
To merely see my face."

The good saint being obstinate,
Loaded on and shook his head;
"My office is to guard the gate;
Please give your name, he said.
Immediately with much pride
The lady blushing outside,
Produced her card, and frowning,
Said, Peter while he read.

"Ah, yes, I know you well," said he;
We have your record here;
On earth your weaker sister's plea
Never wrong from you a year;
You boasted of your virtue there;
It did not make you sweet or fair,
But caused observers to declare
You fickle and severe.

You were as chaste as is the snow
Upon the mountain's peak;
But was your virtue charming? No!
You scorned the poor and weak;
Your virtue brought you no delight;
You flouted it as if to spite
Those whom you frowned on from your height.
And cursed for being weak.

Your virtue was in truth, a vice,
For always day by day,
You looked upon it as a price
You were compelled to pay
For pride and for respect, and not
As glorious in itself; your thought
Was only of the praise it brought—
Go! Yonder is your way."
—S. E. KISER.

Alpheus A. Hanscom Was Once in Newspaper Business in This City.

The Manchester Union of Manchester, N. H., is celebrating its first half century of existence and reviews the lives and doings of some of its editors and staff workers. Among others mentioned is the late Alpheus A. Hanscom, who was at one time a resident of this city where he was in the newspaper business. The Union speaks of Mr. Hanscom as follows:

"Associated with Mr. Campbell (first editor of the Union) in the years now under consideration was Alpheus A. Hanscom, who, as has been seen, bought Charles Lamson's interest in the paper in August, 1864.

"Alpheus Augustus Hanscom was a native of Eliot, born March 25, 1818. When he was 15 years of age, having passed his life up to that time as farm boys usually did, he was apprenticed to his uncle, David Libby, of Portsmouth, a tanner. He remained in the tanning and carrying business only two years and returned to his father's farm. In March, 1836, he entered the office of the Dover Gazette, then owned and published by John T. Gibbs, and remained there until he was 21 years of age. He worked for a time as a book compositor in Boston, went home to Eliot, attended the newly established Eliot academy as a student, and assistant teacher, for two years, and later taught in a district school.

"In the fall of 1841 he went to Saco, and worked as a journeyman in the office of the York County Herald; and upon the discontinuance of that paper he bought, in March 7, 1843, the Maine Democrat, which was published in Saco. Until May 15, 1864, he continued as editor and publisher of that paper, in the meantime serving the town for several terms as school committee man and school district agent; and York county for three years as treasurer. He also held the office of collector of customs of the port of Saco for four years, being appointed by President Pierce.

"Mr. Hanscom sold his Saco business on May 15, 1864, and, as we have seen, purchased a half interest in the Manchester Daily Union. Here he took charge of the financial affairs of the company, although writing some editorials, while Mr. Campbell attended chiefly to the editorial department until his retirement in 1876, when Mr. Hanscom became chief editor.

"When Campbell & Hanscom sold the Union to Hutchins, Reidel & Co., in 1879, Mr. Hanscom bought the Portsmouth Daily Evening Times, and the States and Union, and moved to the seaport city.

"On July 1, 1885, he was appointed collector of customs for the port of Portsmouth, by President Cleveland.

"Late in 1887 he sold his interest in the Times to the Times Publishing company and a few years later returned to his old home in Saco, where a brother then resided. He remained there only a short time and came to Manchester, where he made his home with a daughter, Mrs. Corson. His last years were passed in literary pursuits and he was an occasional contributor to the editorial columns of the papers of this and other states. He retained his interest in newspaper work and public affairs until the end of his life, which came in Manchester, June 5, 1898. He was buried at Saco."

DELAY DECISION ON RAILROAD WAGES

New York, April 1.—A postponement in the date set for handing down a decision in the wage dispute between the firemen of the eastern railroads and managers was announced today when the hearing before the arbitration board was resumed. The decision will be returned April 23 instead of tomorrow as was originally planned.

Ten witnesses in rebuttal were placed on the stand by the firemen today. Their testimony in effect was that the roads have not done as much as they claim to lighten the firemen's burdens, that the firemen's responsibilities have increased in 10 years and that the cost of living has gone up in the same period.

It is said that there is a movement on foot to hold a firemen's muster at Hampton Beach some time the coming summer at which the hand tubs owned in this section will be given an opportunity to contest for supremacy.

BATTLESHIP LEAVING BOSTON HUGS THE FLATS

Rhode Island Causes Alarm Along Water Front by Leaving Ship Channel.

Boston, April 2.—When the battleship Rhode Island was leaving the harbor yesterday the waterfront stood agape. The ship took unheard-of liberties with South Boston flats and wags argued that she was erstwhile a mud digger for the Hamburg-American's new channel to Commonwealth pier. Nobody has explained what was in the mind of the Rhode Island's navigating officer when he left the main ship channel about abreast the New Haven docks and started in on a detour behind a fleet of barges anchored on the flats.

The ship steamed from the navy yard about 8 a. m. and moved slowly toward the open sea. No particular attention was given the ship till she began to swing to starboard right toward the anchorage ground. Such procedure was quite unusual for the simple reason that battleships give the locality a wide berth owing to shallow water. When the Rhode Island began her run sheer it was thought on shore the helm had been altered to prevent collision with some vessel in the fairway.

Nothing of that nature was apparent to landmen who breathlessly waited to see the battleship go aground. She romped in behind the barges, and her course by a matter of 300 feet from the Commonwealth pier, something that had not happened before in the memory of the veterans at T wharf.

Watchers declare the ship touched bottom and ploughed a furrow with her keel plate and the propellers churned coffee-colored brine. Anyhow, the headway of the Rhode Island was momentarily checked, and word was promptly telephoned the navy yard that the man-of-war was aground. A naval tug was ordered to the Rhode Island's assistance, but the ship soon resumed her journey, narrowly escaping a dredge with her ponderous stern.

By the time the Rhode Island had straightened out half the workers along the wharves were craning necks for further entertainment. The ship kept on, however, and passed out of sight, apparently none the worse for her experience. No official report of the incident had been received at the navy yard, where it is believed the Rhode Island must have been forced to leave the main channel by congestion of shipping that invited collision.

Wille yesterday were Mrs. Alice Bradley Melody, wife of William H. (Uncle) Melody, the prize fighter; Patrick Welch, carriage agent at the Cunard dock; Patrick Daley, a teamster for an express company, and a young man reported to be a laborer at the Cunard dock.

Every effort was made by the federal authorities to prevent the witnesses from talking with newspaper men, and especial precaution was taken in the case of the dock laborer, the government even refusing to disclose the man's name. It is said, however, that he is the person who told certain of Chief Wille's men of the method employed by the smugglers to affix customs stamps, designating the baggage had been examined and passed upon to the trucks used by the swindlers in bringing their contraband goods into this country.

Woman Under Surveillance
The stamps were stuck upon the trunks by a woman who is known to the federal authorities and being kept under surveillance by them. It is said that she is a disreputable character and an acquaintance of Terrence L. Shevlin former customs employee, who with his wife, was arrested in Somerville in connection with the swindle.

Mrs. Melody is a cousin of Mrs. Shevlin, and she and her husband Honey Melody, the prize fighter, lived with the former customs employee for a long time. Chief Wille questioned her with regard to the manner in which the Shevlin conducted their home and it is understood that Mrs. Melody declared that from what she knew of their expenses they were inconsistent with the salary Shevlin received from the government.

Carriage Agent Testifies
Welch testified with regard to persons who had hired carriages on March 17, the day the Carpathia docked. It was aboard that steamer that the trunk was carried which was found to contain 20 smuggled Persian gowns. Welch told of trunks being taken from the docks in carriages, and it is understood that many names and addresses were furnished the government by him.

Next Tuesday the smuggling cases are to be taken up by a federal grand jury and the sweeping investigation into all of the circumstances surrounding the frauds will be made. Scores of subpoenas have been prepared and it is understood that the Examination of the persons summoned to appear before the grand jury will occupy more than a week. Asst. United States District Attorney Garland will handle the case for the government.

Chief Wille is satisfied with the manner in which the case is progressing, and after a long conference with the United States District Attorney yesterday he stated the government expected to capture the leaders of the smuggling gang within a short time.

A SPIRIT OF COOPERATION
(From the Keene Evening Sentinel.)

There comes to the surface now and then indications that the public is beginning to see that it cannot continually and persistently knock the railroads without suffering in return. The roads and the public depend on each other, the one for support and the other for transportation.

A state of dissatisfaction springing up at certain policies of the roads, the politicians made use of the situation to carry favor with the voters by a system of persecution of the roads. There were abuses that ought to have been remedied, and so far as those were concerned the new legislation enacted is not to be adversely criticized. But once started the politicians kept on attempting to win favor by acts of annoyance and persecution that were ill advised.

The business of the roads began to suffer, the cost of running the roads was increased and no corresponding increase of income was allowed. The operations of any business cannot be continued at a loss, and the time is at hand when the legislature and state officials must let up on the roads or the roads will be forced to cut down their service, or go into bankruptcy, or both. The feeling that the crowding of the roads must stop or the public suffer is growing.

ELIOT.
The Industrial Club of East Eliot, held another of its private assemblies at the Eliot Grange Hall on Friday evening March 28. Supper was served from 6 to 8, after which a program of illustrated songs. The songs illustrated were as follows: Tenting Tonight, When You and I Were Young, Maggie, The Old Village Pump, The Old Oaken Bucket, Mother Goose Rhyme, Bringing in the Sheaves, At the Cross, A Backward Quadrille, Aunt Dinah's Quilting Party, Will There Be An Stars in My Crown, America.

The program was a great success. 27 persons taking part each doing beautiful work, bringing forth much applause from the audience.

After the last tableaux was given, the curtain was again raised, and the President of the club stepped forward thanking all for their kind attention, and invited all those who wished to enjoy the remainder of the evening in dancing. Ralph Parker of Portsmouth furnished the music, for both entertainment and dancing. All left for their homes at a late hour, vowing the evening a great success, and looking forward to the next assembly held by this club.

CAUGHT 5000 DESERTERS IN EIGHT YEARS
In the American Magazine appears an article about Colonel Charles H. Haskell of Missouri, who became an expert in catching army deserters and

In eight years caught 5000 of them. This was during his term of service as a United States deputy marshal in St. Joseph, Mo. Following is an extract from the article:

"He arrested them singly and in gangs. He bagged five years ago with Barnum & Bailey's circus in Atchison, Kan. Standing at the entrance of the dining room he spotted them as they marched in. The runaways sat together, and when they were ready to leave the tent he drew his revolver and arrested the quintette. A few days later he arrested three deserters who were found sitting around a card table in a saloon in Kansas City, Mo., making eight for the week.

"Deserters seem drawn to each other intuitively," Haskell continued. "Naturally they seek each other's sympathy. If there are two or more deserters loafing in a town, or even a large city, they are pretty sure to get together. Men who are strangers to each other, but who have served in the army and navy, will recognize the fact almost immediately when they are thrown together."

"In his wide experience Haskell arrested numerous 'professional deserters,' men who make a business of deserting and re-enlisting under different names. Their graft is to obtain all of the free supplies possible from the government, buy to the full limit of their credit, and then skip. One of the professionals arrested at the instance of Haskell had enlisted in the army thirteen times, under as many different names, in two years.

"Frequently Haskell dealt with 'soldiers of fortune' who, having not the excitement of war, deserted to seek elsewhere the blood, smoke and noise of strife that delight their souls. This class of adventurers, as he discovered, was made up of 'princes in exile, disgraced artists, jilted romances, and bad people generally, from every quarter of the world, a strange and romantic potpourri of men—all ruined and having their last fling at fate.' The men care not that 14,000,000 soldiers were killed in war in the last 100 years. Tell one of them that 3,000,000 men died for the glory of Napoleon, and he would exclaim 'Bully!'

"The increasing number of desertions make a serious problem for both the army and navy. About 3000 men take French leave from the army every year, and almost as many from the navy. The soldier has more opportunity to desert than the sailor, who is at sea much of the time."

Its safety depends absolutely on levees from all sides. There is no way by which people walking or on trains could escape by going back into the drainage district. Consequently, hope is placed in boats in case of great trouble.

About one-half of the population has left the city already. They were chiefly women and children. There is a large fleet of river steamers here.

TONG WAR CLAIMS ANOTHER VICTIM

San Francisco, April 1.—The Chinese tong war that for months has resulted in intermittent shooting affrays up and down the Pacific coast, was responsible for another death today when Lee Sing, a Sun Sing man, was killed here by two Chin Kong men. A bystander was seriously wounded by a stray bullet.

The police were surprised by the fact that the highlanders violated all precedents and instead of casting aside their weapons and fleeing, fired at pursuing policemen. One highlander was arrested, but the other escaped.

"LUCK" VENDING MACHINES BANNED

New York, April 1.—Penny-in-the-slot machines returning varying quantities of candy according to the "luck" of their patrons were placed under court ban here today. AUCTION SALE OF THE

300-Acre Hayes Farm

Portsmouth Plains, Portsmouth, N.H.

On Saturday, April 5, 1913, at 10 a.m.

AS ONE FARM OR SUB-DIVIDED FARMS

The property will be sold at Public Auction on the premises, near the buildings, and to the highest bidder or bidders. It will be offered first as separate parcels, or farms, as it can best be divided; next it will be offered in its entirety as one parcel. If the total bids for the separate parcels exceeds the sum bid for the entire farm as a whole they will be sold to the highest bidders for the separate parcels. If the highest bid for the entire farm as one tract exceeds the total of the bids for the separate parcels, that bid will be accepted.

This farm contains 300.8 acres by actual survey, and is situated two miles from the center of the City, three minutes from the electric and nearest schoolhouse, 5 cent fare to center of the City. This is the finest farm in southeastern New Hampshire. There are at the present time 100 acres of grass and tillage, 110 acres of pasture and wood land. The soil is deep black loam and is especially adapted for raising corn and all kinds of produce for market and truck gardening. It cuts from 200 to 300 tons of hay a year, depending somewhat on the seasons. The wood is mostly hardwood growth—Maple, Birch, Beech and Oak, with some Cedar and Pine. It is estimated that there are from 100 to 200 cords of wood on the property. If it was desired to clear it up, the water supply is from a boiling spring that has never failed in the dry seasons. It is pumped by a windmill to a tank, and is piped to a part of the barns. Three hundred apple trees of various kinds and bearing.

The buildings consist of a five barn, 20x30; Cow Barn 100x12, with twenty four stalls; Carriage House and Cow Barn 50x60, with basement for natural cold storage; Market Barn 25x30; Stable 30x30; Ox Barn 10x25 feet; long open shed for Cattle 200x10 feet. The Boston and Maine Railroad crosses this entire tract, giving an excellent opportunity for a spur track if desired. There is a good opportunity for a large ice pond in connection with the spring. Two acres of Asparagus yield $400 per year. One acre in Rhubarb, from which is sold over $200 worth. There are about seventy-five head of the best Ayreshire stock at present on the place. The 25.8 acre field bordering on Beverly Hill Road has a house on it and a good orchard. 25.8 acre field fronting on the Greenfield Road is the best of hay fields, with a heavy yield; the part nearest the railroad is also good garden land. The 3.6 acres ("Long Point Field") is a delight to the eye, a gently rounded, warmly sloping meadow, with a big crop of hay.

Stock, Cattle, Horses, Hay, Straw, Tools, Vehicles, Harnesses, Machinery, Implements and other personal property will be sold at a date to be announced later.

Fuller information in detail, with plans, proposed sub-divisions and conditions can be had by applying to the auctioneers.

TERMS OF SALE—Ten per cent. down, balance on delivery of deed.

ALL DEPENDS ON LEVEES HOLDING

Ohio River Above Flood Stages and Inhabitants Are Fleeing River Cities.

Cairo, Ill., April 1.—The Ohio river rose steadily through the night, and has shown no signs of weakening. At 7 o'clock today stood at a point between 53.2 and 53.3 feet. The population was 4000 early, and the fact that the water had substantially passed the 52-foot mark caused considerable anxiety.

All expected that the day would prove the crucial one in the fate of the city. The crest of the flood, is expected to reach here today, and if the levees hold, it is the belief that the worst will be passed.

Much trouble was experienced during the night in the drainage district along the Big Four levees. Three times slides occurred, and only valiant work on the part of those watching it saved the levees. Dozens of earloads of sand bags were placed along about the weak spots, and serious trouble was averted.

Water seeped through under the concrete wall and stood in the main street of Cairo today, but the levee has showed no signs of weakening. A big force of men worked all night placing sand bags and other bulidings along the city water front. It is expected that the Mayor and Sheriff here will give the military complete control of the situation.

Word was received from Maj. Gen. Wood of Cincinnati by the general relief committee that the situation would be handled the same as last year.

Refugees continued to leave the city all night, and crowds are still waiting at depots to get out.

A large subway which was the only passageway from Cairo into the drainage district, has been blocked by sand bags. The place was boarded up and dozens of ear loads of sand bags placed to hold it secure.

As watchmen are able to battle no longer with the levee situation in the drainage district, they are brought in to Cairo and set to work along the river front. Most of the houses and places of business in the drainage territory have been abandoned and it is the prediction that the section is doomed, although this break cannot result in Cairo proper being flooded.

The state troops were sent out in squads of five today, each accompanied by a policeman, to visit the residences of men, who are either unwilling or have refused to work.

All places of business which do not handle goods needed for the comfort and necessities of the people have been closed, so that the employees may reinforce the workers along the river.

Rev. M. H. Lefevre of the Methodist church who has had charge of relief work in former years, is again at the head of the relief committee. He will have about 20 assistants and a temporary hospital, which has been arranged on a large wharf boat in the river.

Cairo is situated on low lands at the foot of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. Its safety depends absolutely on levees from all sides. There is no way by which people walking or on trains could escape except by going back into the drainage district. Consequently, hope is placed in boats in case of great trouble.

About one-half the population has left the city already. They were chiefly women and children. There is a large fleet of river steamers here. Water is rising rapidly.

The water is rising much more rapidly than yesterday and the demand for more workmen has become urgent. The surface of the Ohio river now stands about one foot higher than the highest street level, which is the main thoroughfare of the city.

In case of a break the flood waters would not rise to more than one or two feet in the buildings on the street, but all of the town back of this street becomes gradually lower, and most of the houses would be completely submerged.

THE PROFESSION OF BURGLARY

Training Schools of London and Paris Produce Experts

Numerous compliments have been received by the London police from persons who say that they were ruled while waiting in a crowd to attend a political meeting at Cricklewood recently, and it is suggested that many of these thefts were committed by children specially trained for the task. It is recognized by the police that many schools often run by old thieves, exist in London and other thickly populated areas, where young pupils are taught the A B C of crime. Watch snatching in the crowded domain that the youngsters has to learn, but he receives systematic instruction in the extraction of letters from pillar boxes by means of weighted lines covered with tinsel and in pilfering from the tills of small shops with sticks dipped in treacle. There is not a doubt that these schools do exist, says a police official. "Until within a week ago, at a little thoroughfare between Cable street and Commercial road, there was a residence apparently as respectable as any in the East end which was a veritable incubator house for young thieves. It was well known to the mission workers in the locality, and to the police, but the principals always proved too wary to be trapped."

Children of 15 years and upward were trained there, receiving actual lessons in pickpocket and watch snatching, and many forms of pocket picking. The people have disappeared now, though I doubt whether their operations are at an end. The fact that we find pickpockets adopting the same old methods of passing and receiving proves that these tricks are handed down from generation to generation. It pays to teach children for they are very often cleverer at the business than men and women and not so likely to be suspected. Some revel in the excitement of the thing, others are bullied into it.

Like pocket picking burglary is also taught. It takes a good deal of hard training before a big burglary or safe breaking operation can be successfully accomplished. The higher branches of safe breaking require great skill and considerable scientific knowledge. The elaborate knowledge of up to date dynamiting methods and the use of complicated tools is not learned by casual handling of them. Some one teaches the expert business. What? Ah! we should like to know. There is no limit to the nerve of some of the professionals.

Only a short time ago, a well known detective went through the East end and was robbed of his watch and chain, which was returned to him a few days later with the compliments of the thief. One trainer of thieves provides a notable capture for an observant officer in a West end square a year or two ago. The detective noticed a man well dressed and prosperous looking, standing to light a pipe in the street. The man struck match after match and could not get it to light. The officer started to investigate and found that although the man kept applying matches to his pipe no smoke appeared, so he came within a few feet of him. The man struck a match and a boy of 12 years of age came cautiously out of an empty house carrying a sack from which sticks protruded, and approached the stranger. The officer pounced on the youngster when he spoke to the man, and both denied that they had ever seen one another before. However, the sack was opened and $4000 worth of jewels was found at the bottom. It appeared afterward that the thief had obtained an order to view the empty house and had taken an impression of the key. The plan of the empty house was practically the plan of the rest of the houses in the square. A well trained youngster who could climb a bit did the business. The match striking of course, was only a method of signaling.

Most of the habituels are made between the ages of 16 and 21, and 75 per cent. dare say have been gained in thieves houses. Many of the academics of burglary are situated on the continent and give other countries the benefit of their graduates, when their time for military service approaches. In this way the fame of London's East end schools is noised abroad. It is astonishing, but true, that a youngster of 12, who was but a few years ago arrested in Belgium as an incorrigible rogue, burst into tears before the magistrate, and begged to be sent to London where he had heard he would be able to do well. He could go to one of the West side schools, where the pupils were taught

HOUSE PASSES 54 HOUR BILL

Concord, April 1.—The bill making 54 hours a week's work for women was before the house this morning and was the subject for argument by Representative Bean of Belmont and Stevens of Landaff, in the course of which Mr. Stevens made the statement that Manchester with its thousands of women and children employed in the mills, has the second highest death rate of any city in the United States.

The bill came from the committee on labor with a divided report, a minority making a weeks work 55 hours. Representative Bean spoke in favor of the minority, arguing that competition was so severe that a reduction in hours would result in taking away too large a proportion of the wages of the operatives.

Mr. Stevens made an eloquent plea for the passage of the bill as favored by the majority of the committee, saying that it was a well-established fact that long hours of labor in factories were injurious to women and children; that Manchester with its thousands of women and children employed in the mills has the second highest death rate of any city in the United States among children, and attributed this to the fact that the mothers worked long hours in the mills. Mr. Stevens said he believed in an eight-hour day throughout the country for every body.

The minority report was finally voted down on a division of the house, and the bill went to its third reading, calling for 54 hours for a week's work for women.

The house took a recess at 1.10.

HUGE MEETING

Founders' Night Celebrated at New Hampshire College

In a huge and enthusiastic meeting in the college auditorium the students of New Hampshire college celebrated the Annual Founders' Night.

The purpose of the celebration is to typify and commemorate the ideals for which the state college was founded. Much praise of college activity is given its sponsor, the principal theme being the Presidents address, representing the class room and studies of college, while athletics the student of M. C. A., and various other activities have a share in the program. The night is promoted by the alumni association. It was organized two years ago.

The big auditorium was packed with students and friends of the college. The cheering was led by Robert Beach. There were selections by the college orchestra and songs by the glee club, in some of which the whole audience enthusiastically joined.

The address of President Fairchild was a masterly portrayal of the true ideals that lay before the college student, and the manner in which they may be obtained.

Success, said Dr. Fairchild, is not a matter of chance. One does not acquire strength from forces outside of self. How then, shall the potential man or woman in youth be so conserved as to insure the greatest possible development in the years to come?

The answer is, first of all, work. There can be no happy, successful life without work. What sort of work shall we set our young people to do? Before all else there must be the genuine work of preparation. The most important subject that can possibly engage the attention of young men and women is the question of their education.

The genuine advantage of college training is undeniable. Scores of men deplore the lack of an education, but I doubt whether a man or woman ever lived who regretted having taken a college course, however great the sacrifice. It is true that many men equipped with meager education have accumulated millions of dollars. Others equally deficient in the lore of books have made large contributions to human welfare. But all on these were or are men, of exceptional ability. Who shall say that a college training would not have added to their efficiency?

As a business proposition does it pay to go to college. It is the only place where something of the greatest value can be had for practically nothing. The tuition represents but a small part of the actual cost of equipment and instruction. Graduates from New Hampshire College prove with their own records the rapid advancement that can be made through the preparation secured in college.

But the reason for going to college is not for material advantage alone. Culture and character are everywhere more valuable than dollars. The best thing in any college course is in the discipline and the associations that give trend and fashion to the whole after life.

It is not the information that one acquires for much of that is transitory and soon forgotten. Information of a kind can be obtained from encyclopedias. But a training by which a boy is transformed into a competent, self-reliant, successful man, that is the important thing, and that is what is done better in a good college than anywhere else.

A wealth of advantages, privileges and opportunities lie before the earnest faithful graduate. One of the greatest things that can come to a student is the realization of the meaning of the training that he is getting. The impetus away from business, cowardice, untruthfulness, and all the other qualities that we would have our young people avoid, and the shaping of character toward high purpose, clean thoughts, energetic work, and other qualities that we should like our young people to possess: this is the privilege of the student.

College friendship and the various college activities that grow out of such friendships are factors of the profound importance in the training of young people. To know other young persons of high character, to feel the inspiration of their example, to itself a liberal education. This contact with other students in athletics, orchestra, glee club, Y. M. C. A., and the other phases of the college life, is an effective spur. It makes too, for the purest democracy. Here no less is more thoroughly learned than that of respect of the other fellow and his opinions.

In the words of Edward Everett Hale: "The good of a college is to be had from the fellows who are there and from the instructors and the authority with them. I do not believe that any life outside of a college has been found that will in general do so much for a man as helping him for this business of life. The process of changing a boy into a man, is more simply done in a good college than anywhere else."

The entire program was: Selection, Glee Club; track athletics, N. J. Jones; College Y. M. C. A., P. C. Jones; The New Hampshire, T. J. Twomey; selection, Glee Club; College Club, N. J. Barrett; Y. M. C. A. Helen Plummer; orchestra, C. J. Dresser; Glee Club, H. M. Sanborn; selection, orchestra; address, President E. T. Fairchild; college cheers, led by Robert Beach; Alma Mater, student body.

IN BRIEF

New York, April 1.—Ex-Congressman Timothy D. Sullivan, otherwise Big Tim, friend of the Bowery, has been removed from a private sanatorium at Yonkers, and is today at the home of relatives in Westchester county.

Hopedale, Mass., April 1.—The foundry of the Draper company, manufacturers of textile machinery, was closed today by a strike declared by the industrial workers of the world, who called out 600 men and boys. The other mills of the company, employing about 1600 hands, were not affected by the trouble at the foundry.

Paducah, Ky., April 1.—Shacks are being built on the neighboring hills, provisions are being assembled and arrangements being made to charge the reservoirs with three days water supply, in anticipation of the 50-foot stage prediction for Paducah, which would put the entire city under from one to five feet of water. The crest is expected Thursday.

New York, April 1.—Mayor Gaynor April 1 ukase—nothing to drink after 1 a. m.—struck the tenderloin on schedule time early today, causing the worst drought in a decade. In places where proprietors were inclined to be recalcitrant, the police turned the lights out and unceremoniously forced patrons out to the sidewalk. One postulate man who insisted on finishing a lobster was arrested.

London, April 1.—Lieut. Perilvski of the Russian army committed suicide at Warsaw on Sunday by shutting off the motor of an aeroplane in which he was lying and dropping from a height of 600 feet to the ground, according to a Central News dispatch.

Washington, April 1.—Convinced that public business would be expedited by the practice, President Wilson has decided to set aside two hours each week for heart to heart talks with the newspaper correspondents.

Washington, April 1.—In final arguments submitted to the interstate commerce commission today by the express companies it was maintained that the new rates proposed by the commission would involve destructive reductions in the revenues of the companies.

Albany, N. Y., April 1.—Governor Sulzer today made a demand upon Senator Stephen J. Stillwell of New York that he resign. The governor acted upon complaint made to him by George H. Randall president of the New York Bank Note company, alleging that Stillwell demanded money of him to pass certain stock exchange reform legislation.

Washington, April 1.—Robert S. Lovett of the Union Pacific board today conferred with Attorney General McInerney about a new plan of dissolution of the Union Pacific South ern Pacific merger. Judge Lovett wanted to learn the conditions the government will insist upon.

OBJECTS TO YOUNG OFFICERS RESIGNING

Washington, April 1.—The Secretary of the navy has taken a decided stand against accepting the resignations of midshipmen and young officers of the navy before they have fulfilled their contract with the Government. His position is that these young officers have been educated and trained at considerable expense to the Government, to the possible exclusion of other young men who might have devoted their life to the service, and for those reasons Uncle Sam should receive a permanent benefit from the expense involved.

This policy is intended to imbue the young officers of the navy with a due sense of their responsibility to the Government which has assumed their education and training, without cost to themselves, as well as to impress them with the fact that as long as their services are satisfactory the Government has a right to retain them, said Secretary Daniels.

There have been many resignations from the navy in the last few years officers resigning to engage in private pursuits in which their training at the Naval Academy and in the navy have peculiarly fitted them. It is to break up this custom that Secretary Daniels has taken his stand.

Problem of Navy's Silver Plate
What shall be done with the silver services now owned by various vessels? This problem is confronting the navy department. The value of silver services presented by citizens of states or cities to vessels which bear their names amounts to nearly $500,000. When vessels have been stricken from the list or have had their names changed their services are taken over by the navy department and stored for future use. The silver service of the cruiser New York will be given to the battleship of that name now building. The secretary of the navy hopes that any difficulties regarding the service on the old cruiser Pennsylvania may be met in the same manner. The Delaware carries the finest service of any vessel in the navy. The old Maine was one of the first to receive a service. This service has been recovered from the bottom of the Havana harbor and has been polished up to look like new.

RESTORING ZANESVILLE.

Troops No Longer Needed—Water Supply Turned On.

Zanesville, O., April 1.—Believing that the necessity for troops in this city has passed, Col. C. C. Weybrecht, in command here, intimated last night that he would ask for the withdrawal of the soldiers, as he believed they were more urgently needed in Ohio river cities.

The Muskingum river is again in the banks, having fallen ten feet yesterday. Society girls are busy washing and tending care of babies, so mothers can clean their homes. Colonel Weybrecht reported that 500 houses had been swept away. Five hundred more are ready to collapse. A committee has been appointed to inspect numerous business structures that are considered in dangerous condition.

It will cost $40,000 to repair the "Y" bridge. Colonel Weybrecht estimates that the damage in the city is $5,000,000, not counting the Putnam district nor the losses in the county.

Halfroad traffic on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad east was resumed today, passengers walking two miles over the foot stretch to reach trains. A span and a half on the Third street bridge was found eleven miles from the river. The Zanesville furniture company's plant was found twelve miles below here. Dan H. Gary, the owner, who was considered wealthy, is penniless. A man named Simpson who lost everything has become insane.

The water supply was turned on at noon yesterday and the business district will have gas today. Electric lights are promised the last of the week. Several wagonloads of supplies were sent to points down the river today to starving farmers.

TO SPAIN FOR ROMANCE

Spain is your right country for romance. All the romance of the east washed up there on the red shores. Today the Berbers in the African mountains and the haughty bronze man of Morocco yet strain eyes across the blue strait, yet hang above each household hearth, besides the polished gun and the crooked sword, the key of an ancestral garden where white Cordova streams in the plain of a crumbling palace where tawny Granada hangs on the green hillside below the snows. All the romances of the west have turned to look across the Pyrenees; have marched and counter-marched with Charles-magne past Pampeluna, down the wide basin of the milky Ebro as far as Saragossa, and back through the broad mountain pass of Roncesvaux; or tramped the pilgrimage into Galicia, to the shrine of Santiago.

The story way of St. James lies right across the sky, and the road below it runs in past St. Gilles, glittering among the marshes, past the Abbey of Moissac, fallen from its high estate; past Puenta la Reina, where a queen long dead built the pilgrims a bridge, westward and ever westward to Compostella. You cannot miss the way.

Not that the Spaniard is altogether romantic. He is only his origin. He is arid, he is caustic. He is eminently practical and perfectly unreal. He is a man of the earth, squeeze out emotion, only the violent stimuli, like blood and gold, can do it. So was he always, and his women are still shrouded to make them interesting, and kept in idleness to make them precious. He likes his flavors strong. Bull fights and lottery tickets, saffron, red peppers, and white brandy, strongly accentuated theatres and a heady sort of dancing—these be affected. Any one highly charged to begin with, any one not below the normal in sheer excitability, would not trust himself in such conditions. The Spaniard, however, is proverbially frugal and temperate. His constitutional indifference has dried him through vein and marrow; about him he wraps the mantle of his egotism—individualism is the civilizer then; at his heart coils the irony of the oriental. Nobody else will ever probably understand a Spaniard, and for the outsider he is a mere moving figure in the landscape, as a part of the enchanted whole, all compact of strangeness and beauty.—Harper's Weekly.

SENATE BILL WILL BENEFIT LOCAL AUTOISTS

Bill Pending Will Permit Owners to Travel Across Border Without License.

An auto bill is before the New Hampshire senate, which if passed will be of great benefit to the auto owners of the border towns of Maine, as it will allow residents within 15 miles of the Maine boundary line to operate their buzz wagons in New Hampshire without an additional license for this state. Then by the action of the Maine legislature, auto owners along the Maine border of New Hampshire could do likewise.

The bill is now in the senate and it is hoped that it will soon be acted upon in order that the Maine solons who are near adjournment may have an opportunity to do their share in the compromise. In conversation with a Senator this morning, the information was gleaned regarding the bill, that many in the upper body desired the zone to be widened to 20 miles. Such an amendment would of course be agreeable to the people.

It is the consensus of opinion that the present arrangement, residents of New Hampshire, for instance, just on the border line, are liable to fine if they run their cars into Maine more than ten times without a license. The mutual action of the two legislatures in this particular would be greatly appreciated by hundreds of residents along the borders of the two states.

Opposed To Midshipman Quitting

The government regards itself as having a binding contract with the officers to serve eight years, including the four years at the academy.

The secretary said that since the government was at considerable expense to educate and train these officers, he believed it should receive a permanent benefit for the expense involved.
